On arrival nominees and their guests were invited to have their picture taken in a photo booth with movie backgrounds. These images were then displayed on the cinema screen during the walk in.

1950's usherettes, complete with torches directed guests to their seats.

Video clips were used to introduce awards and nominees removing the need for long, protracted speeches. A live emcee kept timings tight.

Awards were interspersed with the service of interval refreshments, including alcoholic and non-alcoholic ice cream cones and ice pops, as well as the standard popcorn.

Following the awards guests were treated to bite sized pizzas, burgers and hot dogs.
